

Seamus.

17. 4. 35.

My dear Aunt.

Camilla is getting perfectly fit again, bless her, & singularly gay & good. Also she seems to be enjoying herself. ~~She~~ She is taking her tonic, & Ovaltine as well.

As to John. We talked it over, & perhaps she had better go for a week. I don't want to be ungenerous, & she is so much more sensible, also, I hope. Wanted in good will, that I don't think a week could do much harm.

I can make a guess why he wants her! It's because her half-sister has got a job - a clerk or typist at the Soviet 'Embassy' if you please; & they are exceedingly proud of it! They want to cross over her. Luckily she has no ambition to be anything of the kind.

I'm taking her to the dentist next week, &

She is making herself really useful in the garden; able now to do the delicate jobs, transplanting, laying - by - the - heels - etc.

A swarm of friends here over Easter, & we shall motō over on Sunday, after early Church, to St. Hilary. Our parish Church must be the dullest & least desirable all England - Our Rector, tho' a dear & a great friend of ours, is old & has no command over his people. So they are all red-hot Wesleyans, complete with 'invivals' & bad manners, or nothing. It's very sad. There are beautiful bells are out of use, though I'm trying to get them started again. We love rings, but the tenor bell is cracked & the money must be put for its re-founding.

My new book comes at us about a fortnight.

The child sends her best love & thanks for the egg, which is for our woodman's children. (I'm glad she doesn't care to stuff herself with sweets) Ever yours most loving

Jany

Jany thanks for life & letters