Saturday

My dearest Aunt.

The lass will arrive Tuesday, if all well. I think you will find her fit to flourish. Good - but a demand of carbons.
Do you remember her little ribbon watch? It cost several pounds at the start, & here she lost it. It was found again. She looks to mean something. I had it mended, (price 12/6). A week ago she was in Penzance & went to fetch it. Came home, swinging a bag of mixed shopping, & unpacking it in the kitchen said: 'Oh Mother, I want show you the watch'. Then, a minute or so later:
'I can't find it'. I was busy & thought no more. But will you believe it, instead of looking, or telling us, or anything, she let it go at that! A week later I happened back her to time & it all came out.
She didn't know where the watch was; had never found it. Had 'looked' next day, but who was used to Lucy " to me. Says she saw it in the house after she got back, but may be mistaken.

Dad's engine - dad's give me a chance of getting on to the Lost Property Office in Penzance.

Can you beat it? How does she see she's done anything wrong! I wish you'd talk to her about it. It's silly, & so like Tony, & throw things away like that.

She wants to learn dressmaking - an excellent idea, & says you dressmaker would help her. Do encourage that. I'll get her a machine if she's serious.

This in haste.

All love -

Ever yours

Tony
