Dear John:

Your letter was illegible, except for a sentence about being driven. No-one was trying to drive you, I assume you, only to attempt a little civilized reach into courses between us — the principal way in which we can benefit the child. But, since you so firmly reject that, it won't be tried again.

Yours.

D.

I have paid Nora Hynes £8 towards Cassie's holidays. Tomorrow I must start on her spring clothes. Am I to understand that you will do nothing at all?
