My dearest Aunt:

I am sorry to have left you letter for so long, but I have been travelling about & putting things off. I've at last found a place that does my malaria good - I was getting it again badly, & this place which is up at the top of the Schwarzwald, very nearly mountains, seems to be killing it.

I was very glad to hear from you.
As to Camilla. They are putting a bill through Parliament which will make me equal guardian with John.

Until that is done I can't appoint a legal guardian at all. I could make you trustee with an old legal friend - indeed I ought to tie up my money on her quickly, but, apart from all this I must be certain that whoever I left her to would bring her up in a way I should consider suitable.

Poppy is magnificent for infants. I shall have her directly she is post that - I don't suppose I shall die but as you say, one can't tell -

Ever your loving -

Mary
